

A High-Brown
Brown
LADY
and a
RED-CAP
 Make Fun with an
"Alabama Maytag"

Jessica-DIXON and FREEMAN-Frank, appearing in the skit, "A Minute Late"

DIXON and Freeman, well known to vaudeville and at present appearing for Radio-Keith-Orpheum in the New England Territory, are presenting a high brown and black comedy skit from the pen of Rudy A. Powell, entitled, "A Minute Late."

During the action of their skit the following bit of dialogue brings an appreciative chuckle from the audience:

A high brown lady and a red-cap are talking. Lady carries a beautiful suitcase.

Red-cap: "Is your wedding gown in this grip?"

Lady: "No, it contains a present from my fiance."

Redcap opens grip and takes out decorated washboard.

Lady: "What is that?"

Red-cap: "That's an Alabama Maytag." Copyright number (DXXC. No. 74329)

This gag never fails to bring an appreciative chuckle from the audience and Mr. Freeman reports that all over the house they can hear whispers, "He means the Maytag Washer!" We hope that Eastern Maytagers will drop in theaters where Dixon and Freeman are playing to watch the effect of the statement on the audience for themselves.